What is Memory Foam?

Memory foam, also known as viscoelastic foam, is a type of polyurethane foam that has the ability to soften in response to heat and pressure, allowing it to mold to the shape of an object and then return to its original shape once the pressure is removed. It was originally developed by NASA in the 1960s to improve the safety of aircraft cushions. Memory foam is widely used in mattresses, pillows, seat cushions, and other comfort products due to its ability to provide support and relieve pressure points, promoting better sleep and comfort for users.

What is Blue cooling gel infused memory foam?

Blue cooling gel infused memory foam is a variation of traditional memory foam that includes cooling gel beads or particles dispersed throughout the foam. This gel helps to dissipate heat and regulate temperature, addressing one of the common concerns with traditional memory foam, which tends to retain body heat and can make some users feel warm during the long hours' continuous use. The addition of the cooling gel enhances the breathability and cooling properties of the memory foam, promoting a more comfortable and cooler environment for users.
